BOLDUC HOUSE
Preserve America
Presidential Award 2005

Perched on the west bank of the Mississippi River, the village of Ste. Genevieve was settled in the late 1740s about two miles south of its present location. The village was one of several important French communities forming a region known as the "Illinois Country", part of the vast territory held by France in North America at the time. Many of Ste. Genevieve's earliest residents were French-Canadian habitants who farmed the rich, alluvial soil adjacent to the village, producing salt and lead from nearby creeks and mines.

World events impacted the habitants of Ste. Genevieve in 1762, when France ceded all her holdings west of the Mississippi River to Spain at the close of the French and Indian War. Despite the transfer and new Spanish government in the region, Ste. Genevieve retained its distinctive French character and language. A disastrous flood in 1785 triggered the gradual relocation of the village to higher ground between the forks of the Gabouri Creek, the site of present-day Ste. Genevieve.

Much of historic Ste. Genevieve's charm and ambiance is due to the remarkable preservation of the features of the colonial settlement. Its narrow streets and fenced gardens surround some of the most significant eighteenth-century architecture of the nation. These "French-colonial" style buildings were constructed from massive logs, hewn and set vertically to form the walls of the home. Heavy timbers were mortised and pegged into sturdy trusses that supported the impressive hipped roof covering the house and its wide porches. Fascinating variations of this architectural style, known as poteaux-en-terre and poteaux-sur-sole, are found in the historic homes of colonial Ste. Genevieve, as well as in Quebec and Normandy. Historians and architects continue to study these buildings, absorbed by these links with our French colonial past.

As the Louisiana Purchase of 1803 propelled Ste. Genevieve into another chapter in history, its French-speaking residents suddenly found themselves citizens of the United States. Soon the rush of Americans into the Louisiana Territory left its mark in Ste. Genevieve as well. Merchants, lawyers and entrepreneurs settled in the village, building their homes and businesses among the old French houses, creating the delightful mix of early nineteenth-century architecture found today. German immigrants in the mid-century left a legacy of charming brick homes and stores throughout the community.

Today Ste. Genevieve's National Landmark Historic District offers visitors an unparalleled glimpse into its colonial past. Its residents join together to preserve and interpret this most remarkable community.

La Maison de Guibourd-Valle

This important National Register property was constructed in 1806 for Jacques Jean Rene Guibourd de Luzinais, an educated native of France. Recognized for its authentic poteaux-sur-sole (posts on a sill) and vertical log construction, the home features an elegant collection of French antiques, lovely gardens and a gift shop.

Visitors can enter the large attic to see the massive hand-hewn and numbered Norman truss system. Located just off the city square, only 1/2 block from the Church of Ste. Genevieve and Memorial Cemetery. Open daily April through December. Heated and A/C. Guided tours, small admission includes house and garden. Discounts for groups and seniors.

Bolduc House Preserve America Presidential Award 2005

A National Historic Landmark, the Bolduc House was built about 1785 by Louis Bolduc, incorporating timbers from the owner's earlier home located in the original village of Ste. Genevieve. The structure's vertical-log walls are mortised into massive sills that rest on a limestone foundation, a sophisticated poteaux-sur-sole construction. Its double pitched hip roof is supported by a series of heavy oak timbers that constitute a Norman truss system. The Bolduc House is regarded as the first most authentically restored Creole house in the nation, earning the respect of architectural historians everywhere. Accurately restored with original 18th century furnishings, living quarters, stockade fence, 18th century French herb gardens and grape arbor, the Bolduc House is unquestionably an architectural treasure. The Bolduc House Herb Cottage, for gardeners and herb enthusiasts, offers prearranged wreath-making workshops, lectures and demonstrations. Admission includes house and garden tours.

Felix Vallé House State Historic Site

This historic site, built in 1818, was the home of Felix and Odile Pratte Vallé, members of one of Ste. Genevieve's premier colonial families. This important Federal-style limestone building features the authentically restocked mercantile store of the historic trading firm of Menard and Vallé. The family's living quarters display beautiful early Empire furnishings with original mantels and interior trim. A back porch staircase leads to second floor bedrooms. The charming garden features original brick and frame outbuildings. Gift shop on site. Admission charge.

Merchant & Second Streets • 573-883-7102

Bauvais-Amoureux House

The Bauvais-Amoureux House was built ca.1792 by Jean Baptiste St. Gemme Bauvais overlooking le grand champ, the agricultural fields of Ste. Genevieve. Its upright cedar log walls are set directly in the earth, in the rare poteaux-ent-terre method of construction. Heavy, hewn timbers form the Norman trusses, which support the steeply-pitched roof, reminiscent of French Canada.

Purchased by Benjamin Amoureux in 1852, the house is now part of the Felix Vallé State Historic Site. An impressive diorama depicting the village of Ste. Genevieve in 1832 is featured. Seasonal opening. Admission charge.

327 St. Marys Road • 573-883-7102

Bolduc-Le Meilleur House

The Bolduc-Le Meilleur House was built in 1820 by the grandson-in-law of Louis Bolduc. The brace frame structure with brick noggings is an interesting example of combined French and American influences on local architecture. It has been accurately restored and furnished with fine examples of early Federal pieces. Vintage herb and scented gardens of the early 19th century complement the house. The gift shop features Quimper faience, books, herbs, soaps and things French. Open April through November. Admission charge.
